Primary Violence Prevention through Positive Youth Development

As part of line item 4590-1506 of the Fiscal Year 2018 budget, the Department of Public Health (DPH) is required to report to the Legislature on the programs supported through this line item “detailing the grant amount awarded to each recipient and a description of each grant.” This report is in response to this mandate.

The DPH Youth Violence Prevention through Positive Youth Development Program provides funding to community-based initiatives across the state working to prevent youth violence. In the second half of Fiscal Year (FY) 2013 DPH reconceived the Youth Violence Prevention Program and the Youth-At-Risk Program to simultaneously address the rise of violence, crime and a decrease in responsive services. The programmatic merger aimed to streamline the effort to save lives and eliminate multiple forms of violence. The merged DPH Youth Violence Prevention through Positive Youth Development Program provides essential financial resources to reduce violence and identify high risk youth who have experienced adverse childhood experiences that are not currently receiving support services or treatment. The funding continues to build the capacity of community based organizations throughout the Commonwealth to respond to the needs of high risk youth and interrupt the vicious cycle of youth violence. The Program aims to create safe, nurturing environments that allow providers to “teach, touch and inspire” youth at the greatest risk for gang violence, opiate and substance abuse, sexual violence, dating violence, sex trafficking and bullying. The 4590-1506 Primary Violence Prevention (PVP) Grant ensures a rich diversity in programming for youth across the Commonwealth; programming rooted in positive youth development “best practices” and the minimization of duplicative services.

The PVP Grant currently supports 20 community-based organizations across the state. The programs focus on elementary, middle, and high school aged young people (primarily aged 10-17), many of whom are currently involved or at high risk for gang involvement, street violence and sex trafficking. The funding provides crucial support to sub-populations of high risk youth, including: LGBTQ youth, homeless youth, immigrant/refugee youth, disabled youth, truant-youth and low income youth. The service population includes both in-school and out-of-school youth (including youth who are suspended, expelled, or who have dropped out of school). Funded providers work in high risk communities across the Commonwealth; high risk can be defined geographically (areas acutely impacted by violence), in terms of racial/ethnic minority status (recognizing some racial/ethnic groups are disproportionately impacted by violence), housing status (homeless/unaccompanied youth), differently abled, immigration/refugee status, sexual orientation/gender identity, or by other characteristics that place young people at greater risk of violence and victimization.

Programs utilize evidence-based youth development strategies including: mentoring programs; afterschool/out-of-school time programs; dropout prevention; employment readiness programs; financial literacy programs; youth leadership development programs; conflict resolution programs; street/youth worker outreach; case management; arts and self-expression; civic engagement; and the inclusion of youth in all aspects of program development. This line item allows the youth of the Commonwealth the opportunity to receive adult mentorship, build leadership skills, and develop the resiliency skills necessary for navigating through the ever present influence of gang activities and street violence that exist in rural, urban and suburban communities.

In addition to the PVP grants, 4590-1506 supports Safe Spaces for LGBTQ Youth - a grant program that funds eight community based providers. Many LGBTQ youth experience violence and bullying at alarming rates; our providers not only create safe spaces for these youth but often assist schools and local municipalities in reviewing protocols that are more inclusive of all youth in the commonwealth.

The list of the providers for FY18 who deliver youth development and leadership building as well as sanctuary space for gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender and queer/questioning youth, is provided in the attached spreadsheet.
