An Act to prevent furniture tip-over (Meggie's Law).

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

1           SECTION 1. Chapter 94 of the General Laws, as appearing in the 2018 Official Edition,
2 is hereby amended by adding the following new section:-

3           Section 330. (a) As used in the section, the following word shall, unless otherwise 4 specified, have the following meanings:-

5           “Clothing storage unit (CSU)”, any free-standing furniture item regardless of it’s height,
6 including, but not limited to, dressers, chests of drawers, armoires, bureaus, or other units
7 containing drawers where clothing could be stored.

8           “Furniture”, clothing storage units as well as storage furniture such as shelving units,
9 entertainment centers, nightstands, china cabinets, cabinets with doors and or shelves,
10 sideboards, curio cabinets, and other furniture that can be used to support or hold objects.

11 “Manufacturer”, a person, either by himself or through employees or agents, makes new 12 clothing storage units.

13 “Retailer”, a person who sells or offers for sale new or used clothing storage units at a 14 retail store location or online

15 “Tip-restrain device”, a mechanism that is designed to reduce the risk of furniture tipping 16 over by attaching the furniture to a wall.

17 (b) Notwithstanding any general or special law to the contrary, no manufacturer, retailer,
18 limited liability company, corporation or any other entity shall offer for sale a clothing storage
19 unit which is not compliant with the current consumer product safety standard for clothing
20 storage units, as established by the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission. If no 21 such standard exists at the time of passage of this act, manufacturers and retailers must comply 22 with the current standard safety specification for clothing storage units (F2057), established by 23 the ATSM.

24 (c) (I). All retailers who are in the business of selling furniture, including but not limited 25 to clothing storage units must offer for sale tip-restraint devices which can be attached to said 26 units. (III). Upon the sale of a clothing storage unit, the retailer must provide the consumer with 27 information on properly anchoring furniture and the benefits thereof. For the purposes of this 28 section, properly anchored furniture shall mean that attachments to both the furniture and the 29 wall must be into solid wood. If wood studs are not available, information should be given to the 30 consumer by the manufacturer regarding the proper anchoring devices for the wall type.

31 (d). All retailers who offer clothing storage units for sale must: (i) post a notice in a
32 conspicuous manner that states “Furniture may become unstable and tip-over, leading to possible

33 injury or death. Tip-restraint devices may prevent tipping of furniture when properly installed”; 34 (ii) display a clothing storage unit with properly a installed tip-resistant device; (iii) require all 35 employees to educate consumers on the dangers of furniture tip-overs and the benefits of tip-36 restrain devices.

37 (e) A manufacturer, retailer, limited liability company, corporation or any other entity 38 may offer to sell new furniture if the furniture is outside the scope of the standard prescribed in 39 subsection (c) and contains a compatible tip-restraint device and carries a warning label; or if the 40 furniture is outside the scope of the standard prescribed in subsection (c) and the retailer 41 maintains in stock and displays within the store tip-restraint devices available for sale that are 42 compatible with such furniture.

43 (f) Any manufacturer, retailer, limited liability company, corporation or any other entity 44 that sells or offers to sell new furniture to a consumer at retail in violation of the provisions of 45 this section shall be assessed a civil penalty not to exceed five hundred dollars for each violation.

46 SECTION 2. This act shall take effect on the ninetieth day after its passage.
