An Act relative to child custody.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

1 SECTION 1. Section 31 of Chapter 208 of the General Laws as appearing in the 2004
2 Official Edition is hereby amended by striking out the text of section 31 and inserting in place
3 there of the following new text:—

4 Section 31. (a) For the purposes of this section, the following words shall have the 5 following meaning unless the context requires otherwise:

6 "Sole legal custody", one parent shall have the right and responsibility to make major 7 decisions regarding the child's welfare including matters of education, medical care and 8 emotional, moral and religious development.

9 "Shared legal custody", continued mutual responsibility and involvement by both parents 10 in major decisions regarding the child's welfare including matters of education, medical care and 11 emotional, moral and religious development.

12 "Sole physical custody", a child shall reside with and be under the supervision of one 13 parent, subject to reasonable visitation by the other parent, unless the court determines that such 14 visitation would not be in the best interest of the child.

15 "Shared physical custody", a child shall have periods of residing with and being under the 16 supervision of each parent; provided, however, that physical custody shall be shared by the 17 parents in such a way as to assure a child frequent and continued contact with both parents.

18 (b) In making an order or judgment relative to the custody of children, the rights of the 19 parents shall, in the absence of misconduct, be held to be equal, and the rights of the parents and 20 the happiness and welfare of the children shall determine their custody. When considering the 21 happiness and welfare of the child and the rights of the parents, the court shall consider whether 22 or not the child's present or past living conditions adversely affect his physical, mental, moral or 23 emotional health and who was responsible if this is the case.

24 (c) Upon the filing of an action in accordance with the provisions of this section, section
25 twenty-eight of this chapter, or section thirty-two of chapter two hundred and nine and until a 26 judgment on the merits is rendered, absent emergency conditions, abuse or neglect, the parents 27 shall have temporary shared legal and physical custody of any minor child of the marriage;
28 provided, however, that the judge may enter an order for temporary sole legal and/or physical 29 custody for one parent if written findings are made stating facts in this case, that support a 30 finding that such shared custody would not be in the best interest of the child.

31 (d) In determining whether temporary shared legal and/or physical custody would not be 32 in the best interest of the child, the court shall consider all relevant facts including, but not 33 limited to, whether any parent abuses alcohol or other drugs, has deserted the child or alienated 34 the children toward the other parent; but a history of the parties inability to cooperate will not be 35 determinative of the issue of custody. If there are facts of a lack of cooperation or by agreement 36 of the parties, the agreement or order must contain a provision for resolution of matters of 37 dispute in the future during joint legal or physical custody by final alternative dispute resolution 38 a) arbitration in accordance with the provision of c. 105C in this court, b) by agreement, or c)
39 presentation of the issue in dispute only to the probate court by complaint pursuant to c. 231A
40 for future resolution and an enforcement order. Such alternative dispute resolution must be tried 41 and fail before a modification can be entered in this regard. Orders described herein after hearing
42 or trial and or an agreement enforced by the court shall be considered a final judgment
43 notwithstanding future dispute resolution provisions are included therein. In addition it shall be 44 grounds for modification of custody and the awarding of counsel fees to the other party, if a 45 parent is found to have persistently and/or in bad faith, failed to carry out the terms of the said
46 joint custody order or engaged in parental alienation in regard to the other parent with a child.

47 (e) If despite a current or permanent restraining order against one parent pursuant to 48 chapter two hundred and nine A being in effect, the court orders shared legal or physical custody 49 either as a temporary order or at a trial on the merits, the court shall provide written findings to 50 support such shared custody order and cause the 209A order to be amended in regard thereto.
51 The denial, or vacating of such an order first issued in a prior 209A matter by any court, shall be 52 binding on this court, and the facts alleged or which could have been alleged, shall not be 53 permitted to be considered again in regard to its custody or visitation determinations under this

54 section. The definition of 'abuse' shall be the same in custody and visitation matters as defined 55 by c. 209A.

56 (f) There shall be a prima facie presumption in favor of shared legal and physical custody
57 in determining final custody and visitation on the merits, at trial by agreement and/or at a 58 hearing.

59 (g) At any trial on the merits, if the issue of custody or visitation is contested and either 60 party seeks shared legal or physical custody, the parties, jointly or individually, shall submit to 61 the court at the trial a shared custody implementation plan setting forth the details of shared 62 custody including, but not limited to, the child's education; the child's health care; procedures for 63 resolving disputes between the parties with respect to child-raising decisions and duties; and the 64 periods of time during which each party will have the child reside or visit with him, including 65 holidays and vacations, or the procedure by which such periods of time shall be determined.

66 (h) After the trial on the merits, the court shall consider the shared legal and physical 67 custody implementation plans submitted by either of the parties as part of the evidence. The 68 court may issue a shared legal and physical custody order and, in conjunction therewith or may 69 accept the shared custody implementation plan submitted by either party. If the plan is submitted 70 by the agreement of the parties jointly, the court may not reject such a joint custody plan
71 submission and issue a sole legal and/or physical custody award, unless there is a 72 preponderance of the evidence submitted sufficient to overcome the presumption of shared 73 custody or to support an amendment to the joint plan, and the court issues findings of fact and 74 law giving its reasons for such actions.

75 (i) A shared custody implementation plan and/or any other custody and or visitation or 76 support award ordered or accepted by the court shall become part of the judgment in the action.
77 Such an agreement and/or order shall also contain a provision for resolution of any dispute 78 concerning such joint custody, sole custody and/or visitation matters in the future, by i) 79 arbitration in accordance with the provision of c. 105C in this court, ii) by agreement, or iii)
80 presentation of the issue to a probate court by complaint under c. 231A for future resolution and 81 an enforcement order. Custody visitation and or support orders, described herein after trial, 82 hearing and/or by agreement to be enforced by the court, shall be ordered as a considered a final 83 judgment, notwithstanding future dispute resolution provisions included therein.

84 Provisions regarding shared custody contained in an agreement executed by the parties 85 and submitted to the court for its approval that addresses the details of shared custody shall be 86 deemed to constitute a shared custody implementation plan for purposes of this section.

87 An award of shared physical custody shall be considered in determining the amount of 88 child support owed by either parent based on the time the children are supported by either of 89 them when in their residences under the plan and the economic circumstances of the parties. An 90 order of shared custody shall constitute grounds for modifying a prior support order based on 91 sole custody if there is a demonstrated economic impact that is a sufficient basis to warrant 92 modification, or may be the basis for changed orders during joint custody if the economic 93 circumstances of either of the parties shall change in the future.

94 The entry of an order or judgment relative to the custody of minor children shall permit 95 the non-custodial or each joint custodial parent, without the necessity of an order from any 96 court, to have full access to the academic, medical, hospital or other health records of any minor

97 child of the parties or if any child is unimancipated and/or still being supported by either party, to 98 age 23, notwithstanding any other law or order; unless there a specific order to the contrary 99 entered in this court, stating the reasons therefore.

100 Where the parents have reached an agreement providing for the custody and visitation
101 and/or support of the children, the court shall enter an order in accordance with such agreement,
102 unless specific findings are made by the court supported by clear and convincing factual 103 evidence in the case, indicating how such an agreement would not be in the best interests of the 104 children.

105 SECTION 2. Section 9 of Chapter 215 of the General Laws as appearing in the 2004
106 Official Edition is hereby amended by striking out the text of section 9 and inserting in place
107 there of the following new text:—

108 Persons entitled to appeal

109 C. 215, section 9

110 A person aggrieved by an order, judgment, decree or denial of a probate court made after 111 this chapter takes effect, may, within thirty days after the entry thereof, appeal there from to the 112 appeals court or, subject to the provisions of section ten of chapter two hundred and eleven A, to 113 the full court of the supreme judicial court. Said courts shall have like powers and authority with 114 respect thereto as upon an appeal in any civil action, except that an appellate court in any case
115 involving an appeal of an initial judgment or order or modification of a judgment or order 116 concerning the custody of, or visitation with children, shall determine whether the judgment or 117 order is supported by a preponderance of the evidence.
