At the request of the presiding officer (Mr. Scaccia of Boston), prayer was offered by the Reverend Robert F. Quinn, C.S.P., Chaplain of the House from 1983 to 2008, inclusive, as follows:

Prayer.

God, Our Creator, in Whom we place our trust and hope, at the opening of today's 186th Massachusetts General Court, we, the members, seek Your guidance today and in the months ahead. We look to You for Your assistance as we begin to organize and address the issues and items, many controversial, on our common legislative agenda. We also pray for the wisdom to recognize and to meet correctly the current needs of constituents, our communities and the Commonwealth in these uneasy and troublesome political and economic times. This morning, we take a moment to thank our predecessors for their dedication and courage to enact legislation which has made the Commonwealth an excellent place to live, to work and to rear and educate our children and families. We thank all the members of this House for seeking public office in a common effort to promote and serve the common good and the well-being of all citizens. Let the civil, human, religious and constitutional rights of all be respected at all times in our Commonwealth.

Grant Your blessings to the Speaker, the members and employees of this House and their families. Amen.

There being no objection, the prayer was spread upon the records of the House.

At the request of the Chair (Mr. Scaccia), the members, guests and employees joined with him in reciting the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Remarks of Speaker DiMasi of Boston.

Speaker DiMasi then made remarks to the members, guests, employees, and to the citizens of the Commonwealth; and, on motion of Mr. Jones of North Reading, the remarks were spread upon the records of the House, as follows:—

I want to thank my fellow members for your overwhelming vote of confidence today. I am grateful for your support.

You honor me with your faith and you humble me with your trust as I continue to lead this institution, the People’s House.

To Brad Jones, thank you again for another spirited Speaker’s fight. Congratulations on your continued leadership of the Minority Party. You have helped make our legislative process more transparent and accountable to the people of the Commonwealth.

Together, I am confident we will do as we have done so many times before — set aside partisan differences and, in difficult times, lead.

To the Constitutional Officers, Governor’s Councilors and other dignitaries, thank you for being with us today.

To the people of the Third Suffolk District: Thank you for choosing me to be your voice on Beacon Hill for these last three decades. While the Speaker’s office entrusts me with statewide responsibilities, I haven’t forgotten that, in my district, I am still just Sal. In my heart and in my work, I remain the kid from the cold-water flat on Salem Street who will never forget where he came from.

To my wife, Debbie: You have been the source of strength and courage for me and our family. Your work in suicide prevention in the face of family tragedies has been incredible. You have done it not only with strength and courage but with grace and eloquence.

To my children Ashley and Christian, you are my pride and joy. I am proud of all that you have already accomplished in life and I look forward to all that you will do in the years ahead.

This is the fourth time I have been elected to lead this institution. There are others here who preceded me and I ask all of you to join me in welcoming them. Speaker Tom McGee, Speaker George Keeverian, Speaker Charlie Flaherty, and Speaker Tom Finneran.

I would also like to welcome back the members of the House who were re-elected to another term and a warm welcome to those freshman legislators who now join this august body.

Remarks of the Speaker.

Today begins the 186th session of the General Court of the Commonwealth. For more than 300 years, the members of this House have devoted themselves to the preservation of democracy and the welfare of the Commonwealth and its people. We will continue to do so this session.

President Dwight Eisenhower once said: “Human dignity, economic freedom, individual responsibility — these are the characteristics that distinguish democracy from all other forms devised by man.” Let us all be guided by his words as we seek to make Massachusetts a better place to live.

During the last two terms, this House has amassed an extraordinary record of accomplishment.

In 2006, we rewrote the national storyline on health care with landmark legislation that is well on its way to insuring every man, woman and child in the Commonwealth. Since our legislation became law, we have enrolled more than 430,000 previously uninsured people. The Urban Institute’s 2008 Census reports that 97 percent of all Massachusetts residents now have health insurance — the highest in the nation.

How did we do it? We stopped reaching for sound bytes and worked together toward solutions. We brought all the stakeholders into the room, empowered them and crafted legislation that has become a model for achieving universal health care for all Americans.

That is the result of your hard work. It is your achievement and you should be proud.

In the last session, we adopted the same philosophy with energy reform. We worked with Governor Patrick, Senate President Murray and her members and all other interested parties. And the results, from Green Communities and Green Jobs to Advanced Biofuels and Global Warming Solutions, have made us the envy of the nation. Environmentalists hailed our work as the greenest legislative session ever.

That is the result of your hard work. It is your achievement and you should be proud.

During these same years:

- We made an historic decision to advance civil rights by protecting marriage equality.
- We opened the door to stem cell research and made world-leading investments in our life sciences, high tech and medical industries.
- We authored unprecedented investments in public education, making,
- Massachusetts schools among the best not just in the nation but in the world.
- We assisted the poor and most vulnerable by raising the minimum wage, by providing much-needed fuel assistance, and by expanded worker retraining programs.
- We repeatedly put cities and towns first.
- We kept taxes low.

And, in the face of powerful, deep-pocketed special interests, we courageously said no to gambling’s casino culture.

Remarks of the Speaker.

Together, the members of this House made Massachusetts a better place to live, a better place to work and a better place to raise our families.

All of these accomplishments are the result of your hard work. They are your achievements and you should be proud.

We have shown leadership repeatedly in the past and we will demonstrate it again in the future.

To the members of the 186th session of the General Court, I again say welcome. But I hope your sleeves roll way up. From freshman serving their first day to veteran lawmakers who think they have seen it all before, these are unprecedented times and uncharted waters. None of us can say we have lived in times this challenging.

Unemployment is rising and thousands of good people have lost their homes and their sense of security. Shattered futures. Sunken savings. Stolen dreams. People are anxious.

People are scared.

Today, we as Americans face the gravest economic peril since the Great Depression. It will get worse before it gets better. More of our fellow citizens will lose their jobs, more will lose their homes and many more will be a paycheck away from either or both.

In times such as these, people will turn to their government for help. While this is not a storm of our making, we must work together to solve the budget crisis, to live within our means, to reform bureaucracy and to do more with less at all levels of government.

Yes, there are risks ahead and, yes, we must act with deliberate speed. But there are also tremendous opportunities.

We can and we must reform our transportation system from the bottom up to make it fairer and more equitable for all so we can rebuild the public's faith.

We can and we must reform our pension system. It is out of control and we can save billions of dollars going forward.

We can and we must find cost savings in every city and town and throughout state government.

Today is a day of tradition and ceremony for you and your families. You should savor the moment. Starting tomorrow, we will immediately go to work on the challenges that face Massachusetts.

Look around the Chamber at your fellow members. We should get used to seeing each other. We will be here working night and day to tackle these challenges. We will be rolling up our sleeves and working together, in small groups and large and with our colleagues across and down the hall.

We will not hesitate to try different things, knowing that no single act or bill is a silver bullet. We must recognize that only by trying will we find success. And, if we get it wrong, we will admit our mistake and try again until we ultimately succeed.

We must remember the words of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt: "There are many ways of going forward but only one way of standing still."

Today, I can assure all of you, we will not stand still. We have a job to do and we will do it.

Where there is fear, we must show courage.

Where there is anxiety, we must bring calm.

Where there is crisis, we must find opportunity.

Together, we will work our way through these troubled times. We will level with the public and engage them along the way. We will take the tough votes to do the right thing.

But we can only do it together. The power of the House comes from the strength, talent and determination of our members.

Work hard together.

Build camaraderie.

Learn from one another.

Respect each other's opinions.

I ask you today that regardless of your party, regardless of your ideology and whether you are a veteran member or newly elected to this House, stand with me; Work with me; Fight alongside me.

Together, we will move this Chamber forward to once again meet the challenges ahead and improve the lives of all of the citizens of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Thank you.

Remarks of Representative Jones of North Reading.

Mr. Jones of North Reading then made remarks to the members, guests, employees, and to the citizens of the Commonwealth; and, on motion of Mr. Peterson of Grafton, the remarks were spread upon the records of the House, as follows:—

Thank you Mr. Speaker and through you to the members, their families and guests.

It is an honor to once again stand before you. I wish to thank the people of my district, the Twentieth Middlesex District for their continued faith and confidence in allowing me to serve them for another term. I also thank my Republican colleagues for the continued privilege of leading them into the future. While our caucus is small, I can personally attest to its feisty spirit and its unwavering commitment to serve the citizens of this Commonwealth.

On this important day we are honored to be surrounded in this chamber by our family and friends. Please join me in applauding their unwavering support for us. They help us on the campaign trail, they wait for us to come home after the late night sessions and they understand when work obligations force us to miss important family events. And they proudly stand beside us during the occasional criticism we sometimes endure. I am so pleased to have my wife Linda with me today here in the chamber.

I wish to welcome our new colleagues as members of the House of Representatives. You have picked a terrific time to join the Legislature! If at any time you feel that you are in disagreement with the majority party — we will welcome you with open arms into the Republican Caucus.

As we begin this 186th Biennial Session of the Massachusetts Legislature, let us remember that while today is a day of pomp and circumstance steeped in tradition and fanfare, it is about something much more — something that transcends parties and partisanship.

On this first Wednesday of January of every other year we all share a renewed opportunity to make a difference in the lives of the people of Massachusetts. While we share philosophical differences which are sometimes vast and we clearly differ on the means by which we pursue our goals, one hopes that we share a common objective to improve the lives of the people we represent individually and collectively. Today begins two years of hard work on behalf of the citizens of this great state -which they need and deserve, now more than ever. They deserve our focused attention and steadfast commitment to lead them through these difficult times. They will be expecting us to be unwavering in the effort we put forth; they will ask us to think creatively and to support them through these difficult times. They want to start their day with the good news of progress and change not of broken promises and failed initiatives.

Each population we serve has different needs — although we want to help each worthy and needy group who comes before us — we need to be vigilant in our efforts to take control of the financial crisis before us. Finding this balance will require us to work across the aisle for the good of those constituencies.

The House Republican Caucus is passionate about playing an active role in making our state a better place to live, work and raise a family. As members of the minority, we serve as a check to hold the majority accountable when necessary. We intend to do just that with renewed energy and spirit. Not just because it is the right thing to do, but because the times demand it.

Make no mistake; I am a true believer in a two-party system and the benefit it brings to the people it represents and we intend to make our voices heard. In the coming two years, we stand ready to lend a hand to help move our state forward whenever possible.

Each and every voice in this room, by virtue of the oath we just took, deserves to be a part of the discussion, and all of us, no matter our party or our philosophy, should have an equal chance at turning our ideas into law.

We face the worst economy and fiscal crisis in a generation. Dark clouds of ethical excesses on the one hand and ethical shortcomings on the other continue to swirl around state government. For every step forward we celebrate from the last legislative session, we have at the same time taken a step back.

While past sessions demonstrate that over the next two years an issue or two will command our attention that barely gives us pause now, we can be certain that as we assemble here today the economy, the state's finances and restoring the public's confidence in their government will command our attention.

We share an obligation to work to restore faith and credibility in the ethical underpinnings of our state government, its institutions and the people who work in them.

Many of us remember the fiscal crisis of the late 1980's and early 1990's as well as the fiscal challenges of 2001, 2002 and 2003. The fiscal and economic crisis we are in and will continue to be in for the next 18 months may very well make those days pale in comparison. But what is especially frustrating is that our Republican Caucus pleads last year that we were spending too much — that there was no way revenues would be sufficient to support the budget that was passed — went unheeded. The Republican Caucus said it before and we will continue to say it again and again. The Majority spent well beyond our means, the Governor vetoed too little, and the Legislature overrode too much.

Our problem is one of spending, not revenues. Make no mistake: we on the Republican side of the aisle believe we spend too much, not that we tax our citizens and businesses too little. However, the adversities of the day create opportunities for the future — opportunities for meaningful pension reform and real transportation reform to name just two.

When we can reach agreement without sacrificing our principles, the Republican Caucus will do so in the best traditions of the Commonwealth. But when the path chosen by the Majority is one we cannot, or do not, share we will make our objections known with vigor and pride.

Despite differences which tend to define us we need to be sure they do not divide us. We share a commitment to do what is best for the Commonwealth, understanding that passionate objections and pointed disagreements on policy are an integral part of the process and can serve to make the final product stronger.

As we begin this new session of the Great and General Court it is imperative we all remember that while we are each only temporary occupants of an enduring institution the decisions we make will have long lasting impacts on the citizens we represent. We have a shared task of being worthy stewards of the people's trust and money.

We have a tough two years ahead and we must work each day to prove that we are up to the task entrusted to us by the voters of the Commonwealth. I know that the Republican Caucus is ready to get to work, and we look forward to working with the members of the majority and our Governor to move Massachusetts forward.

Thank you. God Bless you and may God Bless the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Benediction.

At the request of the Speaker, a blessing was offered by Reverend Robert F. Quinn, C.S.P., Chaplain of the House, as follows:—

Gracious God, as today's historic ceremonies conclude, we thank You for our material and spiritual blessings which we enjoy as citizens of this Commonwealth. We ask that as a society, we be united in heart and mind in seeking common goals which serve the best interests of our state. Let our communities and neighborhoods enjoy peace, stability, security and prosperity in the days and months ahead. We pray that:

“The LORD bless you and keep you!

The LORD let his face shine upon you, and be gracious to you!

The LORD look upon you kindly and give you peace!”

— Amen.
