JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE.

Thursday, February 10, 2022.

Met according to adjournment at eleven o'clock A.M., pursuant to emergency rules, with Mr. Donato of Medford in the Chair (having been appointed by the Speaker, under authority conferred by Rule 5, to perform the duties of the Chair).

At the request of the Chair (Mr. Donato), the members and employees joined with him in reciting the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Pledge of allegiance.

Silent Tribute.

During the session, the Speaker took the Chair, declared a brief recess and introduced Representative Williams of Springfield who shared his memories of Raymond A. Jordan, Jr., a member of the House from Springfield from 1975 to 1994, inclusive.

At the request of Speaker Mariano of Quincy and Representatives Williams, Puppolo of Springfield, Gonzalez of Springfield, Ramos of Springfield, Wagner of Chicopee, Olivera of Ludlow, and Ashe of Longmeadow the members and employees stood in a moment of silent tribute in respect to the memory of Raymond A. Jordan, Jr.

Raymond A.
Jordan, Jr.

Elected to the newly created 13th Hampden district in the Massachusetts House of Representatives in November 1974, Jordan who was the first African-American from outside Boston to be elected to Massachusetts's legislature, representing Springfield from 1975 until 1994.

In the 1975–1976 legislative session, Jordan voted in favor of ratifying the Equal Rights Amendment (which passed 188–45), against a bill to cut welfare benefits (which passed 198–30), against an effort to reinstate capital punishment over the governor's veto (which passed 166–54), in favor of a measure to reauthorize rent control (which passed 176–49), and against a measure to ban handguns (which failed 35–197). That session, he received a 91% rating from the Americans for Democratic Action, an 82% rating from the AFL–CIO, and a 0% rating from the Citizens for Limited Taxation.

Jordan served as president of the Massachusetts Black Legislative Caucus and as chairman of the House Committee on Counties, the House Committee on Housing and Urban Development and co-chairing the Committee of Energy and Ethics. A 1983 column in The Boston Globe described him as “a 40-year-old professional politician with deceptive countrified charm and a taste for inside wheeling and dealing”. He served as a delegate to the 1984 Democratic National Convention, supporting Walter Mondale's bid for the presidential nomination and favoring unsuccessful proposed amendments to the party platform that called for reductions in military spending and opposed pre-emptive nuclear strikes.

He resigned on February 28, 1994, to accept a position in the federal government, becoming the New England states liaison to faith-based and community initiatives for the Clinton Administration's U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development where he spent eighteen years before retiring in 2012.

He served as a member of the Electoral College in the 2008 presidential election, casting his vote for Barack Obama. During the 2016 Democratic Party presidential primaries, he served as a superdelegate, supporting Hillary Clinton. In 2019, the Raymond A. Jordan Senior Center, named for Jordan, opened; U.S. Representative Richard Neal stated: “I can’t think of a better tribute that we might offer Ray Jordan than naming this facility after him.” Jordan died on February 5, 2022, at the age of 78. The mayor of Springfield, Domenic Sarno, lauded him as “a well-respected champion for his district” and “a caring and shrewd gentleman, who could work both sides of the aisle in order to deliver for the people, families and businesses of his district.” U.S. Senator Ed Markey said that Jordan “was one of the central figures in the transformation of the Massachusetts State House” and that “he made sure equal opportunity and justice were central to state policymaking”.

Benjamin Swan took over the seat, which is now the 11th Hampden District, in 1994 after Jordan resigned. State Rep. Bud L. Williams, who succeeded Swan in 2017, said he had been friends with Jordan for many years and they often bounced ideas and issues off each other. “I talked with him faithfully every week and just a week or two ago, he told me to keep doing my job and keep fighting for the people. Ray was far from just a politician, he was a tremendous family man, my mentor and my friend. He stressed that it should be family first in all things and when you get home leave the politics at the door. Now as I reflect on his words, I believe that it might have been his way of keeping me engaged and telling me to keep the faith.”

In “The Struggle for Freedom: The History of African Americans in Western Massachusetts,” Joseph Carvalho, co-editor stated it best: “Ray Jordan was probably the first elected African-American from Springfield who really had a major political influence statewide. He was not only a dominant force locally, but in the General Court. He was a go-to guy, and state leaders looked to him as a leading representative of the African-American community.

Ray Jordan was and will always be revered as a great man, an influential leader and truly exemplified “the People’s House”. He will truly be missed by many. His legacy lives on in all of us.

Speaker Mariano then offered the condolences of the House; and reflected on several personal and professional moments that they had shared.
