John M. "Jack" Tobin, formerly of Brighton, was the son of immigrant parents and one of seven children. Jack was known as a hard worker his entire life. As a young boy he delivered papers in his hometown of Allston where many of his customers were members of the Boston Braves. Anything he made, as a delivery boy and in subsequent jobs, went to support his family.

He spent his down time gardening and helping his wife run her business. Jack was very involved in local politics and a vital part to his eldest son's successful campaign for Boston City Council.

John M. "Jack" Tobin is survived by his wife Kathryn; their five children, John Jr. and his wife Kate, James, Patrick, Alyssa, Kara all of West Roxbury; and his six grandchildren, Kayleigh, Emily, Jaelyn, Kiara, Matthew and Danny. He was predeceased by his beloved daughter Julie Tobin.
