Remarks of Minority Leader Bruce E. Tarr.

We in the Massachusetts Senate work long and hard to ensure that we reject hatred and intolerance and racism in the commonwealth of Massachusetts, in the United States of America and in our society. I rise to make a statement relative to events in Virginia this weekend. On Saturday, there were at least two rallies that occurred, one involving groups that are reportedly white supremacists and in those rallies and in that atmosphere of hatred and intolerance, there was tragedy. A 32-year-old paralegal from Charlottesville died and two State Police officers died in helicopter crash because their service was required over the rally. Thirty-four other people were wounded in the clashes. It is incumbent on all of us to reject and repudiate acts of intolerance, hatred and violence and racism, whether its source be white supremacy or anything else. That is why I rise to condemn what happened this Saturday in Virginia and to say we must continue to stand as a Senate, as a Legislature, as a commonwealth and as a nation against hatred, violence, intolerance, and racism. I feel it is our solemn obligation to do so as Americans. We share a common sense of virtues that include freedom and justice and liberty to all. I appreciate the ability to rise in condemnation of these events and the sentiments that motivated those acts, I ask that at the conclusion of my remarks the Senate engage in a moment of silence to remember those who have been lost, to remember what is at stake if we do not thoroughly repudiate violence and to ensure our commonwealth does not tolerate those negative things and that the Senate continue to lead in that spirit. Thank you, Mr. President.

Remarks of Senator William N. Brownsberger.

I join the gentleman in deploring the racist, white supremacist rally that occurred and inspired the events that followed that rally. I note that moments ago we made a pledge for liberty and justice to all. We deplore any movement designed to subvert those American values.

On motion of Mr. Tarr, under the provisions of Senate Rule 6, the above remarks were printed in the Journal of the Senate.

Moment of Silence.

At the request of the Mr. Tarr, the members, guests and staff stood in a moment of silence and reflection to the events that took place in Charlottesville, Virginia.

Adjourn In Memory of Edward "Skip" Hammond.

The Senator from Hampshire, Franklin and Worcester, Mr. Rosenberg, moves that when the Senate adjourns today it do so in memory of Edward "Skip" Hammond of Greenfield.

Edward "Skip" Hammond passed away on July 19, 2017 at the age of 76.

Skip was a graduate of Greenfield High School and the University of Massachusetts. Upon graduation, Skip joined the United States Army where he served as a Commanding Officer of an Armor Training Unit at Fort Knox, Kentucky and, ultimately, achieved the rank of first Lieutenant. For his service Skip was awarded the Army's medal of commendation.

Starting at a young age and through his service in the Army, Skip worked for Gribbon's Band Instruments, which provided band instruments and supplies to Greenfield public schools and the surrounding area. Skip purchased the business in 1969 and served as President for 14 years.

In 1983, following the passage of Proposition 2 ½, Skip founded GBI Marketing, a local family run company that provided fundraising options to local schools and other non-profit organizations, to help fill funding gaps created by limited resources. GBI grew from a local New England based operation to a nationwide business, serving over 5000 non-profit groups each year. Through his efforts countless organizations were able to raise critical funds to sustain valuable programs and services to their local communities.

Throughout his life, Skip was an active member of the community, devoting both his time and personal resources for the betterment of the area. At various points throughout his life he served as a board member, chair, or president of dozens of local organizations, including: the Greenfield Savings Bank Board of Directors, the Greenfield Rotary Club, the Greenfield Teen Center, the Greenfield Fire Study Committee, the Greenfield Community College Foundation, the Greenfield Health and Safety Commission, and Greenfield Community Television, as well as the Bernardston Business Association and the Franklin County Chamber of Commerce.
