Remarks of Senator Bruce E. Tarr.

Madam President, on Friday, April 28th, the Ipswich Historical Commission, the Remarks of Senator Bruce E. Tarr.

Ipswich Poetry Group, and others will commemorate the life, literary legacy, and residence in Ipswich of the renowned author John Updike - one of the greatest American writers of the 20th Century.

To celebrate and honor his contributions, the Ipswich Historical Commission will unveil a plaque that will be placed on the Caldwell Building in Ipswich. This building, recorded on the National Registry of Historic Places, was where Updike took an office, Suite number 5, from 1960 to 1974 and where he wrote some of his most acclaimed works.

Updike was a prolific writer, publishing over 60 books during his lifetime. His work included novels, short stories, poetry, and essays. He was a two-time winner of the Pulitzer Prize for Fiction and was also a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

Born in Pennsylvania in 1932, he attended Harvard University, studied English and wrote for the humor magazine The Harvard Lampoon. In 1953, Updike married Mary Pennington and after graduating from Harvard in 1954, they moved to New York City where he worked for The New Yorker magazine.

In 1957, John and Mary moved to Ipswich, Massachusetts, the place where they had honeymooned four years earlier. The Updikes raised four children together there - Elizabeth, David, Michael, and Miranda. Known for its wit, realism, and exploration of the human condition Updike was a master of the short story, and his novels often featured characters who were struggling to find their place in the world.

Updike was a member of the Ipswich Historical Commission and even helped write a book on Ipswich for the commission, Something to Preserve: A Report on Historic Preservation in America's best-preserved Puritan town, Ipswich, Massachusetts.

Updike's work had a profound impact on the writing community in Massachusetts and beyond. He was an inspiration for many young writers, and he helped to raise the profile of Massachusetts as a literary center.

His works have been translated into dozens of languages, and they have been adapted into films and television shows.

John Updike was a master of language, weaving words together with the skill of a weaver to create characters, places, and stories that form the fabric of our communities and enrich our lives.

Although he died of lung cancer in 2009 at the age of 76 he is today remembered as one of the greatest American writers of the 20th Century.

Massachusetts residents have a lot to be proud of in recognizing the literary contributions of John Updike. His work has enriched the lives of readers all over the world, and he is remembered as a giant of American literature. He was a true artist, and his work will continue to be read and enjoyed for generations to come.

Under the provisions of Senate Rule 6A, the remarks were printed in the Journal of the Senate.

Ordered printed.

Order Adopted.

On motion of Mr. Tarr,--

Ordered, That when the Senate adjourns today, it adjourn to meet again on Monday next at eleven o'clock A.M., and that the Clerk be directed to dispense with the printing of a calendar.

Time of meeting.

Moment of Silence.

At the request of the President, the members, guests and staff stood in a moment of silence and reflection to the memory of John Reed.

Moment of silence.

Adjournment in Memory of John Reed.

The Senator from Cape and Islands, Mr. Cyr, presented a request that when the Senate adjourns today it do so in memory of John Reed of West Yarmouth.

John Reed, a civil and human rights champion, a lifelong mentor, and dedicated educator, passed away on February 10, 2023.

Born in Boston on September 28, 1950, John found his passion for mentorship and education at a young age when tutoring classmates in junior high. After graduating from Dorchester High School, John studied at Boston State College before receiving his bachelor's degree from the University of Massachusetts Amherst.

In 1973, John moved to Cape Cod to work as a history teacher at Barnstable High School where used his love of teaching to serve the community for decades. He taught history and social studies and offered a course on African American History – ensuring students had access to an enriching and diverse education. At Barnstable High School John founded the Imani Club to celebrate and empower students of color.

John's passion and dedication to support students stretched across Cape Cod. In 2005, He established the Barnstable County Human Rights Advisory Commission. Serving as a commission chair for many years, John helped create the Human Rights Academy for Cape Cod students, which helped students conceive, develop, and complete human rights projects. His efforts to support young people of color on Cape Cod has inspired new generations to continue his meaningful work, and in 2021 he received the Commission's Rosenthal Community Champion award.

John's commitment to education was also a commitment to his fellow educators and school employees. He proudly served his colleagues as President of the Barnstable Teachers Association. He also represented teachers across the Commonwealth as a Massachusetts Teachers Association Board member and as the Massachusetts Director of the National Education Association. In 1993, John was awarded the Massachusetts Teachers Association's Human and Civil Rights Award in recognition of his efforts to advance the rights of People of Color in his community. He also received the prestigious National Education Association's H. Council Trenholm Memorial Award in 2008 for his contributions to addressing racial and ethnic biases in the education profession.

John dedicated his life to equity and justice and is described by Human Rights Advisory Commission as a "force of conscience and strength on Cape Cod". He served as President of the Cape Cod Chapter of the NAACP for seventeen years. He was also a founder, board member, and longtime Executive Director of the Zion Union Heritage Museum – an entity dedicated to celebrating the robust histories and heritages of Black, Cape Verdean, Brazilian, Caribbean, and Wampanoag Cape Codders. John held an enduring commitment to honoring and lifting up the voices of Black, Indigenous, and People of Color in our community and schools.

Friends and loved ones will always remember John for his sweet and gentle nature, his warm smile, and his genuine interest in and desire to engage with the lives of those he held close. John was always there for those who needed him, and his relaxed and easy-going demeanor belied his fierce commitment to his lived values.

John is survived by his wife and high school sweetheart Karen, his brother George, his stepfather Willoughby and hosts of nieces, nephews, and cousins. John was an indispensable member of our Cape Cod Community, and his unyielding drive to better the lives of others benefited generations of Cape Codders past, present, and those yet to come.

Accordingly, as a mark of respect to the memory of John Reed, at twelve minutes before twelve o'clock noon, on motion of Mr. Tarr, the Senate adjourned to meet again on Monday next at eleven o'clock A.M.
