Dear Registrar Deveney,

I am a psychologist in [REDACTED] who has specialized in treating addictions for the past 30 years. I am alerting you to a problem where my Massachusetts patients who have had DWI's in New Hampshire are not having their MA licenses revoked. They have ALWAYS been revoked in the past, but there has been a change for the last 8 months, or roughly since the new licenses have been instituted. This is a dangerous situation. I have called the Registry and sent emails with no response. This is a serious problem as I have many people driving in MA without penalty or caution. Please advise me if there has been a change in the law.
